

It sounds a bleak picture but despite everything Lymphoedema brings to our lives in I believe the majority of us live are lives fully and with joy when we have beaten cancer. At our support group meetings we can laugh with one another as well as confide every day and ongoing difficulties we encounter, someone else will always offer advice and support. One long standing member dubbed us the Lymphomaniacs!

What we all want need and truly desire is a service that is able to totally support all our health related needs whether physical or mental . For too long this incurable condition has been the poor relation in our health service, with no strategic guidelines and out of date information

Thank you for listening
